What is asm stock list

Refer to this FAQ from NSE. This covers the criteria based on which stocks are moved to ASM and also the surveillance actions applicable to these stocks. The shortlisted securities shall be further monitored on pre-determined objective criteria and would be moved into Trade for Trade segment once the criteria get satisfied. 100% of the traded value will get blocked as margins i.e. no intraday leverage is given (MIS/BO/CO isn't allowed). You can't pledge stocks which are in ASMT to know the stocks which are currently under ASM, check out this page on the NSE website. Corporate actions aren't impacted by a stock being under ASM. All corporate actions like Bonus, dividend, stock split, etc. the benefits are passed on to the shareholder even though scrip is under ASM. Note: In cases where a stock you have pledged is moved under ASM, you will no longer be provided collateral margins for that stock, because, as per ASM 100% margin should be levied. The collateral value (shown on the trading terminals) will reduce by the value of collateral received against that stock. You can either unpledge the stock or keep the stock pledged without collateral until the stock is moved out of ASM. ASM & GSM are important measures that SEBI has adopted for investor's safety. It is important for investors to know how these protective measures work in their favor. SEBI and stock exchanges, to enhance market integrity and safeguard investors, have introduced Additional Surveillance Measures (ASM) on securities. As on 19-02-2021, 120 stocks are under the long-term list of ASM and 41 stocks under the short-term list. Shortlisting of securities for placing in ASM is based on the following parameters: High Low Variation Client Concentration Close to Close Price Variation Market Capitalization Volume Variation Delivery Percentage No. of Unique PANs PEASM is good for investors as SEBI would thoroughly verify any unexpected price movement in a stock. It will control speculative activities and reduce the possibility of any malpractice. How ASM works? Stock Exchange has introduced ASM mainly for controlling speculation (trading) in the stock. ASM includes 2 basic points: Circuit Filter 5%/100% margin on open positions of stocks Being in ASM will put restrictions on intraday trading in these stocks. More importantly, it will be mandatory for brokers to keep 100% margin on these stocks as against 35% OR 40% in the usual case. It effectively means that margin trading will be disabled in these stocks. However, these stocks will be available for buying under the cash segment. Such curbs will discourage speculators and intra-day traders from taking heavy positions in stocks. It is often that flight of such traders leads to liquidity evaporating, causing stock prices to drop. Now, with these restrictions, unstable traders will not be able to take out a huge chunk of money at one go. It in turn will lend stability to stock price. The companies can get in and out of the list based on the review conducted by exchanges every 2 months. What is Graded Surveillance Measure (GSM)? GSM is a system designed by SEBI to keep a check on shares that see an abnormal price movement - out of sync with its financial health or fundamentals. These companies are often characterized as penny stocks. They are illiquid, have a negligible market cap, and poor fundamentals. Such securities are often vulnerable to financial misconduct. With GSM, SEBI intends to identify suspicious stock shares at an early stage and protect investors from dealing in them. Such shares are monitored for sudden changes in earnings, book value, fixed assets, net worth, and price to earnings multiples, among other factors. Stages of GSM? Once a company is identified under GSM, it goes into one of the six stages of the GSM. With every stage, the restrictions get progressively higher. At the first stage, securities are placed under trade-to-trade category, and a maximum of 5% price movement in shares is allowed. At the second stage, Additional Surveillance Deposit (ASD) is applicable on these shares. It is in addition to the restrictions imposed in the first stage. The ASD will be retained by the exchange for 5 months. In the third and fourth stages, buyers are allowed to trade in security only on the first Monday of the week. They attract paying an ASD of 100% and 200% respectively on the traded value. At the fifth stage, trading is permitted only on the first Monday of a month in addition to an ASD of 200%. And, at sixth stage trading in these shares are permitted only on the first Monday of the month, without any upward movement in price. How do companies get out of GSM? SEBI will conduct a review process twice a year where companies will be moved in or out of GSM. Also, a quarterly review will be carried where companies can be moved back and forth. The companies are also given a right to challenge SEBI in the Securities Appellate Tribunal or the high courts for relief. Implications for Teji Mandi investors: By introducing these measures, SEBI has tried to restrict investments in stocks with suspicious price movement or excess volatility. This covers stocks where prices don't reflect the fundamentals. Investors should take it as a warning sign if their stocks fall under this list. We at Teji Mandi do not invest in stocks listed under the GSM list. However, even a fundamentally sound stock can enter the ASM list. It is possible that one of the stocks in the Teji Mandi portfolio might fall in this list. In this case, some brokers like Zerodha have added the concept of TOTP (Time-based OTP). If we were to sell a stock which is on the ASM list through Zerodha - you can follow the instructions here to set the TOTP. What is ASM list? How to get ASM listed shares? The ASM list has created havoc in the stock market. All shares listed under ASM list are declining sharply. Investors are worried and directionless. They are wondering about what to do in ASM listed stocks? If your portfolio also contains ASM shares and you need help about decoding term ASM and precaution you should take here is complete information about ASM including ASM list. What is ASM? ASM is Additional Surveillance Measures. It is a new category formulated by SEBI to check market manipulation. High-risk stocks are placed under ASM list. Let's try to understand this by example. Graphite India is a multibagger stock. Graphite India has given exceptionally high returns to the investors in past one year. On 31st May, 2017 stock price of Graphite India was Rs.115 and on 31st May, 2018 price of Graphite India was Rs.888. This means in last one year this stock has given 672% CAGR return to the investors. Graphite India is now placed under ASM list. Similar to Graphite India there are other multibagger stocks such as HEG, Dilip Buildcon which are placed in ASM list. You must be thinking why multibagger stocks are placed in ASM list. The stocks that follow simple criteria such as price volume spike is put under watch. Apart from that if a stock price is not justifying fundamentals it is put under ASM list. Also Read - Top 5 Best Stock Screener for Indian Stock Market ASM list is released by BSE and NSE as per SEBI's guideline under ASM framework. The intent is to keep the Indian equity markets safe for investors and check undue volatility in stock prices. The exchange will review these stocks on a bimonthly basis and make the changes as per ASM framework. The shortlisting of stock under the framework is only on the account of surveillance it is not a disciplinary action against the company. How ASM affects Investors and Traders? After getting complete understanding about ASM let's try to understand how ASM affects stock market investors and traders. Intraday trading in ASM listed stock will be very difficult. Trader dealing in such stocks have to deposit 100% margin, and these counters attract 5% circuit filter. This means stock price in such stock cannot go up or down by more than 5%. This means traders have limited profit or losses. One can sell shares if it is lying in the demat account. For investor it is bad news. Due to negative bias, these type of stocks are likely to fall. Existing investors profit will be negatively impacted. If you are long-term investors you need not worry about such short-term fluctuation or negative news. The ASM measures helps uninformed investor as it reduce speculation in the stock market.
